MOUNTAIN AVE.

Zoning Issue: Lone Dissenter Speaks Out

By PATRICIA REID
Of The News Staff

When the vote was called for on a recommendation by the Mayor's Advisory Committee concerning the zoning of north Mountain Ave. on both sides from 13th St. to the city limits, only committee member Roy Maupin "strongly objected" to the proposal.

Maupin later enumerated his specific objections. These included:

--The committee did not follow the instructions of Mayor Abner B. Haldeman when he made the second assignment on Wednesday, Sept. 13, 1972 in the Council Chambers. (During the Sept. 5, 1972 Council Meeting Haldeman said he expected that the committee would contact every person owning or having an interest in property in the area. He felt it was important to study the total development of the area rather than consider each proposal in a piecemeal way. He said he thought 70 percent of the problem involved public relations and bringing people together. On Sept. 13, Haldeman estimated the study would take at least six months and that the committee should work with the Planning Commission and the Planning Department and that they not get into specific zoning recommendations).

--He wasn't allowed to present his complete research and findings from studies he's made on Mountain Ave. These included in part a second educational tour and slide presentation of condominiums and planned unit development (PUD) projects in the area and a street design he'd made and was revising for Mountain Ave.

--The committee was not supposed to vote on the recommendation without the full committee in attendance and Isabel Whitney was not present on Jan. 11 when the vote was taken.

The two-part proposal which was accepted as a "progress report" by Haldeman and the Council read as follows:

--"That the General Plan remain the same as is now in effect as it relates to the West side of Mountain Ave. from 13th St. North to the city limits except that the Southwest corner of 16th St. and Mountain Ave. be designated as R-3-3600 and the Regional Shopping Center designation be restored at the intersection of Mountain Ave. and the Foothill Freeway.

--"That the General Plan remain as is on the East side of Mountain Ave. from 13th St. north to 16th St. except the Southeast corner be designated as R-3-4350. Also from 16th St. north to the city limits be designated R-3-4350 except that the Regional Shopping Center designation be restored at the intersection of Mountain Ave. and the Foothill Freeway."

Maupin personally objected to this increase density zoning proposal for the following reasons:

--People don't want it: "Citizens have indicated on many occasions to the Council that they want single-family residences and fine homes in the $40,000-$50,000-$60,000-$70,000 class in the Northwest quadrant of the city and that they don't want commercial or multiple dwellings," he said. Maupin also cited the recommendations of the Eisner and Associates General Review of Mountain Ave. made in 1972 which said to lower density on the east side and keep the same density of the west side of Mountain Ave.

--Not a main arterial highway: "I have letters from District Eight of the Division of California Highways indicating Mountain Ave. is not a main throughfare connecting the three north-south freeways. Mountain Ave. stops at the Pomona Freeway and goes nowhere, he said. Euclid Ave. and Central Ave. are the only two arteries from the Foothill Freeway to the Corona Freeway.

Maupin also pointed out that the Mountain Ave. traffic is "self-generated" because of commercialization and heavy density due to apartments and not "through" traffic as maintained.

A traffic study he made of traffic in and out of San Antonio Canyon revealed that only one out of 20 cars took Mountain Ave. Also, the District Engineer said he'd rather have the Mt. Baldy traffic use Euclid Ave. than Mountain Ave. because it "is a dangerous street and congested because of commercialization and Railroad crossings."

--Upland's already overdeveloped: Maupin referred to various Market Feasibility Studies' criteria on the requirements of Regional Shopping Centers which north Mountain Ave. doesn't meet. One is population must be from 2,000-5,000 and the other is that a "C-2" neighborhood center can't exceed 5 acres. Maupin said the proposed center on 16th and Mountain has 15 acres and does not meet "center of population" requirements.

"Because of time-distance factor measurements to other shopping centers you also have an absolute overlap and superconcentration of market facilities in this area now," he said.

--Most apartments in Valley: Maupin cited findings from the 1970 census that showed Upland has over 25 percent development in multiple dwellings. This made it second to Montclair with 26 percent. However, in the last two years the number of multiple dwellings in Upland have increased by about 2,000 units. "Upland is by every measure tremendously overzoned in multiple dwelling," he said.

--Won't attract high-class condominiums: Maupin feels the R-3-3600 and R-3-4350 zoning recommendations "almost define condominiums." He referred to an article about PUD's in "California Builder" magazine which listed the necessary ingredients for expensive condominiums as: view, location and prestige. He feels the area is not suited for such high class condominiums in the $40,000 and up bracket and that the type development that is suited for north Mountain Ave. in the $20,000 bracket will not be the most desirable type of development possible.

Concerning alternative suggestions for the development of north Mountain Ave. Maupin said, "I feel it should be upgraded to single family residences as was originally planned. The zoning of Upland should make a curve from Euclid Ave. over and take advantage of the high ground of Mountain Ave. That's where expensive homes can be built on proper elevation with a beautiful, unobstructed vyes of the mountains."

The street plan Maupin's designed is for $70,000 homes and a divided highway with a medium strip of trees and bushes. He emphasizes that the plan also provides for safe parking and safe access.

According to topographical maps Maupin shows how Mountain Ave. starts to rise at Foothill Blvd. and dramatically crests near 16th St. and north. "This is where the desirable single-family homes shold be built because affluence gravitates to high ground," he concluded.

All Local Communities Alike--'Pinky' Alder

"All the Foothill communities are alike in that they have the same desires and needs which differ from those in the valley flatlands and this ties people together in a very real and meaningful way," said Upland City Manager Elwin "Pinky" Alder. Alder spoke at a recent meeting of the Alta Loma Community Chamber of Commerce.

Alder went on to say that the unincorporated areas of Alta Loma, Cucamonga, Red Hill and Etiwanda would still retain their individual identites, but would all be annexed to Upland and be a part of the large city of Upland if annexation took place.

Alder gave a factual 30-minute presentation on "Shall Upland Annex Alta Loma?" to an attentive and large audience Monday night. His talk was based on the recent update of the report titled, "Economic Analysis of Possible Upland Annexation," made by Development Research Associates of Claremont in 1969.

Alder emphasized several times that he "wasn't trying to sell anything" but merely presenting the facts and advantages and disadvantages to annexation. Still the skeptical Alta Loma and Cucamonga residents in the audience couldn't resist voicing strong objections to being annexed. Several asked Alder what the real benefits would be if they annexed to Upland. One woman said, "By annexation you'd have a city three times the size of the present Upland and would have 20,000 more people to help pay the taxes for Upland's 35,-000."

Alder explained that Upland's current boundary proposal is bordered by Upland on the west, the mountains on the north, Etiwanda Ave. on the east, and San Bernardino Ave. on the south. He indicated that "it was possible that the eastern boundary would be expanded to include the entire community of Etiwanda as only one-half of the city is currently included in the annexation area."

When asked if Upland would be interested in annexing the same area if the Southern California Edison's Etiwanda Plant wasn't included, Alder indicated that the tax base of the power plant is vitally important to the city's annexation plans. "It wouldn't be economically feasible," he said, "if it didn't include the entire area."

During Local Agency Formation Commission meetings it was reported that the three communities of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda, including the Edison plant but not Kaiser Steel, would have an assessed value of $110 million and be the third highest among the cities in the county.

One of the highlights of Upland's report is that the city's tax rate would drop to $1.07 (from $1.80 now) if the area became part of Upland. Concerning present property tax and service comparisons, Alder showed a transparency of a table comparing property tax rates per $100 assessed valuation in the annexation area and in Upland. The conclusion was that area residents would have an increased tax rate levy of .39.33 cents if annexation took place. At present the "municipal" tax rates of the unincorporated areas range from .52-.79 cents.

As listed in the report, Alder reviewed the pros and cons of annexation. Advantages were:

--36 full time employees and five new police patrol cars
--three new fire stations
--better planning and zoning
--recreation programs and adequate park facilities
--lower refuse collection rates
--better street maintenance
--traffic control, animal control, nuisance control
--major emergency service
--voice in local government
--quick response of local government to needs
--consumer protection

More rigid controls in all areas of living are the main disadvantage.

The population of the combined areas would total a quarter million people and thus provide "lots of political muscle and greater benefits," he said.

Alder didn't indicate that any more seats would be added to the present City Council, but that the annexed area would have representation. He also said advisory groups would be established to confer with the city if the unincorporated area came under Upland's "sphere of influence."

Civic Center Hassle To Be Aired-- On Request

Because of a request by Upland resident Donald E. Carlson, 1349 Waverly Ct., Mayor Abner B. Haldeman last night agreed to meet with anyone interested in an explanation of the controversial Civic Center funding.

Councilman Harold A. Bailin has charged the $332,000 reserve fund for the civic center completion project was set aside by the city manager without the expressed consent of the City Council.

The $332,000 total included a $200,000 surplus in the city budget that was not publicly reported to the city council.

Haldeman has said that, although not specifically designated for the civic center, the funds were reported to the council.

Los Olivos: Give It 81 Days More

All five commissioners of the Housing Authority of Upland voted unanimously to accept a resolution drawn up by Jerry Leggitt, executive director of the Los Olivos modernization project, to extend the construction company's contract 81 days.

The one-year $795,000 modernization contract for Maddox-Stabler Construction Co. of Los Angeles officially expired Tuesday, Jan. 23. On Dec. 14, 1972 Joseph Stabler presented a letter requesting renegotiation of their original contract for 81 days extension with additional payment of $100 a a day or $3,022 a month for the delay. The company's main points for the request for additional costs included the following:

--Tenants refusal to move into half-modernized apartments

--Changes in inspectors, contracting officer, architects and executive directors have caused problems of continuity in the supervision of construction

--Higher costs and increased time spent because of agreement in contract to employ residents of the tract

--Time delays and rising costs of materials has increased subcontractors' costs.

Leggitt said a special meeting concerning the change order and request for remuneration for days lost was held with HUD officials in Los Angeles on Jan. 12. Leggitt said HUD officials absolutely wouldn't allow a renegotiation of the original contract.

Band Members Raising Money For Hawaii Trip

With a Feb. 15 deadline to raise the necessary funds to appear in the Hawaiian Festival of Music from April 23-30, members of the Upland Highlanders High School Band are gathering resources and raising funds as fast as they can.

This Saturday, Jan. 27, will be the start of the first and biggest fund-raising activity. It's labeled as "Flyer Day" because on that day band members (in full uniform) will hand deliver flyers explaining the next weekend's "Tag Day."

The Band Booster organization is sponsoring the Tag Day event and will accompany the band members in their canvassing on Saturday, Feb. 3. During the time from Jan. 27 - Feb. 15 the Booster Club and band will be actively publicizing the band's current project and their contribution to the community in general. Boosters state that "Our band will put Upland on the map" and "We are proud of them." They emphasize that the band is in effect a community organization.

E. J. Rosenbauer, president of the Booster Club, said at least 150 students plan to attend the festival and maybe as many as 185 if the entire drill team goes he said. Rosenbauer said the cost of attending the event, including air fare, motor transportation on the island, food, lodging and a one-day tour, will amount to $305 per person. He said the student's parents are financing their children's trips. Money for the remainder of the students is being raised.

On tag day band members will hand out cards requesting a contribution.

Upland Girl Strives For A Gold Medal

Most 15 year old girls dream about school proms, clothes, driver's ed and all the myriad of school events on the calendar. Julie Crawford of Upland is "dreaming" about and working toward the goal of being a figure skater in the 1980 Olympics.

Julie has been skating for the past 4 1/2 years. She began skating at the Ontario Ice Bowl where she took part in group lessons. When she soon indicated more than just normal 10 1/2 year old enthusiasm, Julie then proceeded into private lessons. She joined the Arrowhead Figure Skating Club in Ontario and in turn won several competitions while contending with other Ice Skating clubs in Southern California.

Her next 2 1/2 years were spent in making two trips per day to the West Covina Ice Arena. Figure skating and free style were obviously "her thing" and Julie and her mother arrived daily for skating before school. As soon as the school bell announced 3 o'clock, Julie would return to West Covina for another two hours of practicing, jumps, fancy spins and lots and lots of intricate footwork on the ice. She is now a member of the Arctic Blades Figure Skating Club based in Paramount, and, she has won countless medals and trophies during inter-club competitions . . . including being one of the three top skaters in her club division for several years.

Julie is currently making two long treks daily to the Glacier Falls Ice Rink in Anaheim where Evy Scotvold coaches her in this precise sport. This young miss is up at 4:00 a.m. and "on the ice" by 5, continuing her practicing in her quest for perfection . . . after 3 hours of this regimen, she returns to Upland High School for a full day of school work. The minute school is out, Julie is once again in her mother's car headed for another 3 hours on her blades. Six hours of skating each day is quite a rigorous exercise program for anyone . . . but, brown-eyed Julie Crawford has the energy and determination to succeed.

Julie has been taking two ballet lessons each week in Los Angeles in order to improve her body control, grace and poise for skating . . . practicing her plies and grand battement positions must be done at home around the edges . . . between homework and her favorite spare time activity . . . reading books. She feels that ballet is an essential part of her training.

Julie Crawford knows that in order to realize her ambitions... to be a gold medal winner in the figure skating competition in the 1980 Olympics . . . she must complete eight tests as well as compete in national competitions.

Eco Impact Study May Be Released

The long-awaited environmental impact study being made at Ontario International Airport may be released May 15.

The study is needed to meet a federal requirement before a second main runway can be constructed at the airport

Completion has been delayed for several months pending acceptance by the Federal Aviation Administration of an airport sound evaluation system.

Officials of the Los Angeles Department of Airports, operators of the Ontario facility, announced today an amended contract with the Northrup Corp. for the additional noise analysis necessary to complete the report.

The five major areas include: environmental impact of the proposed construction, identification of adverse effects which can't be avoided, alternatives to the proposed construction, identification of adverse effects which can't be avoided, alternatives to to the proposed action, relationship between local short term uses by man and long range productivity, and any irreversible and irretrievable committment of resources required for the project.

After the study is completed, a 90-day waiting period will be observed to allow all interested people to study the findings. This will be followed by a public hearing, with testimony presented to FAA officials.

Officials estimated 13 weeks following release of the FAA information, Northrup will be required to complete the noise analysis and publish the environmental impact statement. The final report will also include a noise exposure level to be used for land planning purposes. Cost of the additional works was set at $15,473.

The second main runway is proposed to be located 800 feet south of the existing runway, with the threshold moved to the east 2,000 feet.

Recognize Adam, Eve, Urges PTA Council

Foothill Council PTA has passed a resolution urging that the Biblical version of Creation be included in California textbooks as well as Darwin's theory of evolution. A copy was telegraphed to State School Supt. Wilson Riles.

It was reported that students of Alta Loma High School and Upland Junior High School have voted for having PTAS groups on campus; the first in the Fifth District.

The 1972 Christmas Basket program was very successful. One hundred-six baskets were delivered to five hundred and fifty-six individuals in Upland. Seventy-nine families in the Alta Loma-Cucamonga area, and six Etiwanda families were recipeints of complete holiday meals. Foothill Council extends its thanks to the many service clubs, scout groups, local business and the Upland Fire Dept. for the many hours, time, and food that made it possible to help so many.

Richard Wheatley, of Central School District, and Foothill Council Legislation Chairman, explained the ramafications of Senate Bill #90. Although not translated into actual figures yet, it is generally assumed that the schools in the Chaffey Union District will benefit, making scheduled overide elections in some districts unnecessary.

Reservations for the January Fifth District Meeting to be held at the Hilton Inn, San Bernardino, Friday, January nineteenth, were taken. The topic, Year Around Schools, is expected to attract educators throughout the county, as well as PTA members. Robert Bell, of San Bernardino County Board of Education office; Dr. Howard Carmichael, supt. of Hesperia Elementary School District; and Alfred Waner, principal, Big Bear Lake Middle School will compose the panel. Luncheon will be served following the program.

Scouts 'Play' It Up At Pack 604 Meeting

The theme of the January meeting of Cub Scouts Pack 604, Upland, was Music Makers and there was lots of "music" made.

Awards were presented to some very hard-working scouts. David Alvarez received his Wolf award. John and Steve Maynard received their Bear awards and a Gold Arrow Point for each. Webelos Achievement Awards were presented to Matt Beingesser, Artist and Athlete, and Scott Snyder, Geologist. Graduating on to the Webelos Den were John and Steve Maynard. Scott Snyder was presented the Arrow of Light Award, the highest award possible to receive in Cub Scouts.

The new Webelos Leader is Delores Colarossi. She is the leader of Webelos Den 2 meeting on Monday evenings at 6:00 p.m.

Some dates to remember are: Feb. 9-Scout Uniform Day; Feb. 11 - Scout Sunday; Feb. 15-Pack meeting and Blue and Gold Dinner.

☆ IMMORTAL WORDS FROM IMMORTAL MEN ★

Exalt The Citizen...

As the state is the unit of government, he is the unit of the state. Teach him that his home is his castle and his sovereignty rests beneath his hat.

Make him self-respecting, self-reliant and responsible.

Let him lean on the state for nothing his own arm can do and on the government for nothing his state can do

Let him cultivate independence to the point of sacrifice and learn that humble things, with unbartered liberties, are better than splendors bought with its price.

The couple plans a May wedding.

Local Author Guest Speaker

Historian Esther Boulton Black will be the featured speaker tonight at the Historical Society of Pomona Valley's annual dinner to be held at the Pilgrim Congregational Church in Pomona at 6:30 p.m. Ms. Black is a local author who wrote the "History of Upland" for school age children and has extensively researched the Cucamonga Rancho and the John Rains Home in Cucamonga.

She will make a solid presentation of the history of the Rancho including original research and insights concerning Dona Maria Merced.

Another Woman Obsessed By Sex: Molly's Better

The shadow of Molly Bloom lies long over Night, the latest novel of Irish writer Edna O'Brien, and it all but blots the life out of the smaller book, which is a pity because Edna O'Brien has her own limited but genuine gifts. She has forced the Joycean comparison, however, by choosing to make her novel proceed from the ruminations of one Mary Hooligan as she lies sleepless through a long night. And she has seen to it that Mary's thoughts center largely on -- what else? -- sex.

But poor Mary Hooligan has not a pennysworth of the bounce and vitality that make James Joyce's heroine so memorable a character. Her "yes" to life is more of a "well, maybe." And such a response, while perfectly understandable in Mary's character and circumstances, is not enough to engage you for 179 pages.

Especially if you, like me, are surfeited with women characters whose whole life has consisted of weddings and beddings. Edna O' Brian's heroine, the daughter of a well to do farmer, predictably rebels against the restrictions of life in rural Ireland, gets deflowered , leaves, meets men, sleeps with them, has a child, meets more men, and so it goes, on and on -- and on.

Once upon a time, this kind of book would have been a sensation, and Night would have been a bigger sensation than most because of Edna O'Brien's lush writing style. But one novel of the type is much like another, and after a time even the differences in quality are eroded by the sameness of theme.

What does Mary Hooligan do when she's not in the sack? Maunder, for one. Use splendid, sometimes overripe, language, for another. And then? Nothing. She has no more solidity than one of those old Hollywood sets that were all Western town in front and nothing in back.

Does this propose the complete erasure of a subject that has long sustained novelists? Not at all. It does mean that no novel can ask to be taken seriously simply because its subject matter was daring once upon a time.

Are there women whose entire lives revolve around sex? Probably, although I suspect not quite so many as writers have given us to believe. Does Edna O'Brien make us accept Mary Hooligan as such a woman? To some degree she does. We see her as a loose, generous, foolish, life-enhancing woman without much thought of the morrow.

But, does Edna O'Brien make us care about Mary Hooligan? Not very much, and there's the rub. Why do we care about Molly Bloom, then? Ah, that's the secret of great art, and such secrets don't reveal themselves in brief reviews. If you don't believe me, try that last section of Ulysses, then read Night, and you'll see that while Edna O' Brien deserves an A for effort and boldness, she doesn't rate more than a C-plus for accomplishment.

Haldeman Outlines Revenue Sharing

Upland Mayor Abner B. Haldeman gave an informative presentation on revenue sharing funds during a recent January membership breakfast of the Upland Chamber of Commerce.

Using figures and percentages, Haldeman summarized briefly where the funds are going -- when and how they'll be spent. He based much of the discussion around priorities in the distribution of money in Upland -- and referred to the PPBS budget planning method of determining "value factors."

"Everyone today has a different value factor than his peers. There's always a chance for confrontation. We should not make decisions on emotionalism or political convenience," he said.

Haldeman said the basis for priorities in the city today go back to recommendations made in the early 50s by a citizen's committee. They indicated a major effort should be made in park acquisition and development.

He said Upland received $164,000 in revenue sharing appropriations this year. The Upland City Council designated the funds for this year should go for tree trimming and the proposed Civic Center project. Thirty-two percent (or $55,000) will go towards purchasing supplemental equipment and to the street crew who clean up the parkways. When a family recently asked him what a tree trimming truck was needed for, Haldeman replied that the city has 30,000 trees and it lacks the necessary equipment to service them.

The city council also designated $113,700, or 68 percent of the total funds for the Civic Center.

Haldeman was quick to point out that Upland's tax rate has remained the same $1.80 for the last three years while special district taxes went up 44 percent and county taxes went up 16 percent.

Haldeman said Upland's tax rate reached a peak of $2.10 in the 30s and has "semingly stabilized at the $1.80 figure now.

Mayfair goes

We believe we now have the best meat, produce

Sorry trading-stamp fans.

In addition to our regular low discount prices, we also have even lower prices — Mayfair's weekly Best Buys. You'll find dozens of them here on these pages — and dozens more in the store.

To give you such drastically cut prices — and to keep giving them — we have had to drop trading stamps. Sorry. But we think you'll agree that it's impossible for Mayfair to give you true discount prices and stamps, too.

We hope you'll shop at Mayfair this week. You'll see that only the prices have been cut. And you'll discover that, on discount prices, Mayfair really is more fair.

Mayfair has cut prices drastically on meat, on produce and on thousands and thousands of canned goods, frozen foods and other grocery items.

We are now a true discount market with prices to match on more than 7,500 items—the things most people buy most every time they shop.

We believe that Mayfair prices are now as low as—or even lower than!—the prices you will find at other supermarkets.

But even though Mayfair has gone discount with cut prices throughout the store, we have not cut corners on service and we have not cut quality on meat and produce. In quality and service, Mayfair is still strictly first-class.

that with constantly increased appraised valuation together with actual building -- assuming you have a viable community -- the tax rate should not go up," he noted.

The county will receive in excess of $10 million in revenue sharing funds this year, the mayor said. He said if Upland were to use all of its revenue sharing funds to reduce the city tax rate, the cut could amount to 21 cents, or a $1.59 tax rate. If the county were to use its entire share of revenue sharing funds for tax relief, county taxpayers would find their taxes reduced by 51 cents.

"The citizens of this county would benefit more if the county's share of revenue sharing went to tax relief," he said.

At the opening of the discussion, the mayor said he appreciated the chamber's suggestions for the city's overall priorities and quipped, "We're dealing with 'tainted' money -- 'tain't enough!" In a newsletter, the chamber board of directors indicated how they felt the money should be spent: "Acquisition of land and its development as park sites should be ranked first in importance. Under the plan outlined by the city, no steps will be taken toward this goal for three more years. At this time a softball diamond will be constructed. Disposal sites will also be acquired, but only long-range plans are being made to eventually develop them as parks."

The chamber said second in importance should be the civic center. "Overburdened taxpayers are still clamoring for relief from the extremely high taxes they're paying, and this important issue should not be overlooked," they stated. "No money has been allocated by the city for the purpose of lowering local taxes; however we feel this should be not only given consideration, but placed among the three top priorities."

Haldeman reviewed Upland's socio-economic profile and stated that these figures have a bearing in relation to the amount of revenue sharing funds a city receives. He stated that 69.9 percent of Upland's population has high school diplomas, and this is tops in the county. Upland is also first in median income at $11,701, he noted. Also, only 6.4 percent of the city's population has an income below the poverty level. This is the lowest percentage in the county, he said. Also, Upland places second in the county in the category of population with an income above $15,000.

In a review of park acquisition and development, Haldeman said that since 1961, when the city had three parks for its 16,000 residents, they've added a total of 59 acres to the parkland figure.

Postal Service Again Offers Tax Booklets

Two U.S. Internal Revenue Service booklets are again being offered to the public at post offices, Postmaster Charles L. Welch said today.

The 75-cent publications are "Your Federal Income Tax" and "Tax Guide for Small Businesses."

"The books give both the individual and the businessman invaluable guidelines on preparing their federal income tax," Mr. Welch said.

One Way To Conserve An Estate: Give Part Away

Death and some taxes are inevitable; estate taxes need not be.

If you want your property to go to loved ones without Uncle Sam taking out a big chunk, there's a way. Give it to them while you're still living. It's all quite legal. Though you may not be able to avoid estate taxes completely, you can reduce the bite.

Before talking about how, let's take a moment to look at the general estate-tax picture. You don't have to worry about any Federal taxes at all if your estate at the time of your death is valued at less than $60,000. If you leave more than that, it will be subject to Federal estate taxes at rates ranging from 3 to 77 percent, depending on the size of the estate.

Large gifts also are taxed by the government, but not so heavily; the rate ranges from 2.25 percent to 57.75 percent. But a substantial amount of money or property can be given away with no tax at all.

First, each calendar year you can make gifts of up to $3,000 each (or up to $6,000 if a husband and wife jointly) to as many persons or groups as you wish. The gifts will be entirely free of federal taxes and will be exempt from most state taxes. It isn't necessary that the recipient be a relative. And no federal gift-tax return need be filed unless the gift is in the form of a "future interest" -- that is, it can't be spent or otherwise used by the beneficiary until some future time. An example would be money placed in trust by parents for the future use of their children.

LIFETIME EXCLUSION

Gifts of future interest do not qualify for the $3,000 exclusion, but that doesn't necessarily mean you have to pay a tax on them. In addition to the $3,000 exclusion, you may give away up to $30,000 during your lifetime, tax-free, under what is called the lifetime exclusion or exemption. Your spouse may do the same. The gift may be made in a lump sum or a little at a time. Once the limit is reached, though, the exemption may not be used again.

Gifts made under both the $3,000 annual and the $30,000 lifetime exemptions may be in the form of cash, real estate, securities, personal property, or other holdings. But while such gifts are exempt from federal taxes, most states do not have an equivalent of the $30,000 lifetime exemption. Moreover, a federal gift-tax return must be filed by the giver when the lifetime exemption, or any part of it, is used. The return must be filed with the Internal Revenue Service by the 15th day of the second month following the end of the quarter in which the gift was made. The return must show when the gift was made, what it consisted of, and who got it.

The tax saving that results from giving property instead of, or in addition to, bequeathing it can be quite large. In a new book Who Will Get Your Money? author John Barnes cites an example of a wealthy couple who gave $3,000 to each of their three sons and $3,000 to each of their daughters - in - law under their $3,000 annual exclusions, and $20,000 to each son under their $30,000 lifetime exemptions. This removed $96,000 from their living estate, resulting in an eventual estate-tax saving of about $35,000.

RULES TO BE HEEDED

In electing to make gifts, however, certain other rules should be heeded. Under what is called the contemplation-of-death rule, gifts presented within three years of the giver's passing are presumed by the Government to have been made with the knowledge that death was approaching and are therefore retroactively taxable. This is to prevent avoidance of taxes by people who are about to die.

The three-year rule does not apply to the $3,000 annual exclusion, and that's one reason why the annual exclusion should always be used before the lifetime exemption. The other reason is that when the exclusion for any one year is not used, it is lost foreever, whereas the $30,000 exemption is good for life.

Some benefactors become so engrossed in circumventing the tax collector that they give away too much. Parents have been known to end up in the care of their children after a gift-giving spree. Obviously, any large divestiture of property should be undertaken with care and expert advice.

More detailed information about gift and estate taxes is available in the following publications:

"Federal Estate and Gift Taxation" (publication No. 448), available for 50 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D.C. 20402; and from district offices of the Internal Revenue Service.

'Almost' A Family--But Not Quite

Once you get over the initial shock--the realization that what you are watching is not some underplayed, half - improvised, imitation-of-life movie in the style of Barbara Loden's Wanda or Paul Morrissey's Heat--you find yourself drawn almost irrestibly into Craig Gilbert's new TV series An American Family (PBS: Thursdays, 9 - 10 pm EST). Notice I said almost.

The idea, as explained by Gilbert at the beginning of the first episode, was simply to present an American family during a period of seven months. To do this, he and his camera crews were with the William C. Loud family of Santa Barbara, Calif., for up to 18 hours a day during a period from about June 1, 1971, until Dec. 31 of that year. They shot some 300 hours of film, now edited down to a series of 12 one-hour episodes.

"There is no question that the crew had an effect on the Loud family," says Producer Gilbert (an assertion that, even in January, merits serious consideration as the understatement of the year). He adds disingenuously: "But it is also true that the Louds had an effect on us."

Why were the Louds chosen? Officially, you never learn. Gilbert simply says: "They are neither average nor typical. No family is. This is not the American family. It is simply an American family." Title, credits, and so on. Only hey! Did you notice that? As An American Family flashes by, there are cracks in the letters. Could it be they're trying to tell us something?

It could be, for immediately you are at the end of the period Gilbert and his crew spent filming the Louds. You learn that Bill and Pat Loud have split up, that this is the first New Year's Eve he is spending away from his wife and the four teen-age children who live at home. This is how their story ends--and so, knowing that, you are whisked back to the beginning, 6:30 on a morning in late spring. You follow them through their daily routine. There is some effort made to individuate the children, but because they are so close in age, this is never really accomplished in the first episode.

The only one of the Loud children who is distinguishable is the one who is absent, 20-year-old Lance. But you meet him, too, at the Chelsea Hotel in New York, where he has come in expectation of a job on some underground publication, a job that never works out.

You learn most about him in the second episode of An American Family, to be aired Jan. 18, in which Pat Loud, alone, visits her son for a few days in New York. Short of depicting Lance in a physical act, it is made about as explicit as can be that he is homosexual.

Chaffey Wins

Chaffey College rolled to its fourth straight Mission Conference basketball win as the Panthers knocked over Palomar 76-70, on the Comets home court.

The game was close all the way but Chaffey put up its best game of the year with a balance offense and defensive board strength.

After two losses in Conference play the Panthers have jelled into a strong contender for the league title. In the game last Saturday night four of five starters hit in double figures. Chaffey's front line of Bob Kovach, Fred Burghgraef and Harvey Visser is not only the tallest, but one of the strongest to play under Coach Barney Newlee in years. Bob Young, who is recovering from a football injury, started his first game and hit for nine points.

Starting guards Pierre Rankin and Len McDonald scored 32 points between them. When Phil Merenda gets over the flu, Chaffey will have three strong guards to go with.

Bob Kovach twisted his ankle in practice last week and was a doubtful starter for the game. Although Kovach started the game, he was not in top form and was held to his season low of 11 points. He was leading rebounder in the game with thirteen.

Other scorers in the game for Chaffey were Burghgraef with thirteen, Visser, nine, and Frank Harris, two.

Palomar's top man was center Bob LeBrun with 26 points and 12 rebounds.

Chaffey's next game will be at home against San Bernardino Saturday night. Chaffey is now 4 wins - 2 losses in Mission Conference play and will be going for its fifth straight victory against San Bernardino.

Chino Edges Damien, 41-36

Chino edged Damien in a thriller last week at the Damien gym, 41-36. At times the game resembled something less than basketball. Chino turned over the ball seven times in the first quarter, but Damien couldn't capitalize on the mistakes. The first quarter ended with a cold-shooting 8-6 Chino lead.

Again with poor ball handling and weak shooting percentage, Chino had the advantage at half-time, 19-17. Perhaps the only good play was Damien's last second basket to bring them within two at half-time. The Spartans managed to hold on to the ball for half a minute to execute the final two points.

The Spartans capitalized on all three Cowboy turnovers in third quarter action, but hurt themselves with two technicals. Apparently one player failed to raise his hand in recognition of a foul; Cowboy Dirk Story converted on all three tosses. A second technical was called on a Spartan player's remark from the bench. Damien pressed the last five minutes of the third quarter to tie the game 32-32 at the end of the period.

Damien pulled ahead with seven minutes remaining, 34-33. The game changed hands twice during the last minutes of play. Cowboy guard Manuel Delgado pulled the game out of Damien's reach with two key foul shots, 32 seconds remaining. The Spartan's missed a desperation shot and the Cowboys converted on another two pointer to gain the five point final margin.

Tim Smith was the Cowboys only double figure man with 10 points. Dirk Story contributed nine. Damien's Bob Farrell was the game's high scorer with 15 points.

Neither team fared well in action Friday night. Damien was ripped by Ganesha 92-68. Chino again had a terrible first quarter and couldn't recover to upset the Pomona Red Devils. The final score was 50-45.

Claremont Falls To Cavaliers, 52-39

Montclair Cavaliers recorded a 52-39 loss to Claremont Friday night at the Wolfpack gym.

The first quarter was the margin of victory for the quintet from Claremont; they jumped out to a 17-4 advantage. The Wolfpack used the fast break effectively, with Todd Ervin at the controls. They were seven for eight from the free throw line during the initial period.

The Cavaliers had their problems in the first period, shooting at a cold 13 percent. The zone defense employed by Montclair was not too successful, so early in the second quarter coach Lanny Moore changed the defense to a man-to-man. This move forced the Wolfpack into numerous turnovers.

The Cavs played even basketball with Claremont from the second period on. Both teams scored 35 points in the final three periods.

Free throws were an important factor in the outcome of the contest. Claremont hit 18 of 33 free throws, while Montclair was three for 14.

Fullerton Next For Cal Poly Cagers

Cal Poly, Pomona will get back into the swing of California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) basketball competition Friday and Saturday nights, Jan. 26 and 27, against Cal State Fullerton and Cal State Northridge.

Both games are on the road and will start at 8 p.m.

"The pressure for the remaining seven conference games will be mounted squarely on our shoulders," coach Dan Ayala commented. "It will be up to us whether or not we remain in contention for the conference championship.

"We played well against Chapman College and the University of Oregon and I think the kids are prepared for the task ahead of them," Ayala concluded.

The Broncos, who now own a 6-8 overall record after their win against Chapman and narrow loss to the University of Oregon and are 1-2 in CCAA play, will probably start Alan Smith at center, forwards George Thompson and Gary Anderson with Gary Koerner and Robert Gray at guards.

Anderson, a 6-5 senior from Long Beach City College, continues to lead the Broncos in scoring with an average of 12.0 after connecting on 71 of 147 field goals and 26 of 32 free throws.

Smith, who continues to shoot a sizzling .620 percent from the field, is the second top scorer with 152 points for a 10.9 average. He has hit on 67 of 108 field goals and 18 of 31 free throws.

Thompson, who has played in two fewer games, is averaging 11.3 points a game while Gray is contributing 10.6 points a game. Thompson has clipped in 56 of 111 field goals and 23 of 37 charity tosses while Gray is 60 of 132 from the field and 28 of 34 from the line.

Top subs Richard Reid (9.0) and Bob Brooks (9.1) have supplied a scoring threat off the bench while Lee Roy Williams, Al LaRocque, John Carrillo and Tom Anderson also have played well.

Cal Poly will attempt to record their third straight win over

'Mad Woman Of Montgomery'

Pomona Valley Woman Recalls The Tragic Life Of Zelda Fitzgerald

text by eulalie wells

as told to anne graham

If I have to peg this story with a beginning, I guess that peg point would be Montgomery, Alabama in the summer of 1917. I was 12 years old that summer and had just started to notice boys. I'm not sure I was actually ready to notice boys, but that was a romantic summer. Everybody in Montgomery was in love with somebody else. I fell in love with Boyd St. Clare, who was 15 and never looked at me. Happily, this made our relationship a safe one. My sister was in love with Enrico Caruso, and my brother John was in love with the most popular girl in Montgomery.

Her name was Zelda Sayre. She was 17 that summer, and even I, who was jealous of her, had to admit that she was the prettiest girl I'd ever seen. In fact, there was nobody quite like Zelda -- in Montgomery, or most of us thought, anywhere else in the world.

Zelda was blonde, had very blue eyes and what could only be considered a 'determined manner.' She was a girl who did whatever she wanted to do. In a city like Montgomery in 1917, this wasn't only unusual, it was remarkable.

Most of the older people (my parents included) didn't like Zelda. They said she was wild. My mother even went so far as to say Zelda had inherited "bad blood" -- which implied there was insanity in the Sayre family. But Mother said this in front of John, in hopes of keeping him away from Zelda. It didn't work. John kept up the pursuit of his ideal girl, but he was hopelessly outnumbered.

The United States entered W.W. I in the summer of 1917, and Montgomery changed profoundly. Thousands of soldiers and aviators poured into the city to train at Camps Sheridan and Taylor, which were just outside town. Naturally Zelda Sayre became the soldiers' favorite local belle. John, who was a year older than Zelda, wanted to enlist in the army instead of going to college. He told Judge Sayre, Zelda's father, that he thought Zelda might notice him if he appeared on her doorstep dressed in uniform.

"That's silly, John," Judge Sayre told him. "The front porch already looks like a barracks, and she has all those trinkets and insignias they like to give to their girls. It wouldn't be worth it. You might even get sent overseas and get killed!"

John was finally coming down out of the clouds. By the end of the summer, I think he realized he'd never be anything to Zelda but a good friend. Dejectedly, he went off to the University of Alabama. When he came home the next summer, he was engaged to a pretty dark-haired girl named LuAnna Martin -- and Zelda Sayre had already met F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Fitzgerald, as I remember him then, was a good-looking man with beautiful features, but legs that were way too short. At least that's what I think the problem was. Fitzgerald was one of those people who never, physically, looks quite balanced. But you can't exactly determine where they're out of proportion.

I remember Fitzgerald was always well dressed. He was only a first lieutenant in the Infantry, but his uniforms were perfectly tailored. Also, I remember he wore bright yellow boots with spurs. The other young officers wore what was issued to them. Scott, like Zelda, was a person who invariably stood out. People noticed him and noticed there was something different about him. I suppose he and Zelda were alike. They both loved attention and praise -- and they loved being told what a handsome couple they made. Together they shone.

I was too young to be invited to any of the parties Zelda and Scott went to, but Zelda introduced John and LuAnna to Fitzgerald and, once, they double dated. John told me that Scott was of Irish and "very old American" descent. He'd gone to Princeton, but apparently hadn't graduated, and he'd been in love with a beautiful Eastern socialite named Ginevra. A 13-year-old schoolgirl, I was fascinated with Scott Fitzgerald from that moment on.

John said Zelda had taken him aside at a dance and asked him if he was going to marry LuAnna.

"Of course I'm going to marry her," John told her. "We're engaged, Zelda!"

Zelda laughed and said she'd forgot. Then she told John she was going to marry Scott. "Do you think all the boys in Montgomery will be angry?" she asked.

"I don't know, Zelda," John said. "But I hope that's not the reason you want to marry Scott."

Zelda frowned and started to walk away. "Don't worry, John," she said. "I might not marry Scott at all. I could just as easily marry Red Ruth."

John told me he was taken back by Zelda's remarks. Zelda had always been a free spirit, a girl who lived completely for herself. "But now that I'm back in Montgomery and seeing her again," he said, "her peculiarities don't seem entirely natural."

Zelda and Scott were married in New York City in the spring of 1920. Scott was building a reputation for himself as a writer, and Zelda had confessed to a few close friends that she was truly in love. Eleanor Browder, a friend of Zelda's who later became a friend of mine, told me that Zelda was "delerious" the night before she left Montgomery to marry Scott. "She sat up all night telling me what she would do as the wife of the prominent F. Scott Fitzgerald," Eleanor said. "She told me she wanted to turn cartwheels in plush hotel lobbies and ride on top of taxi hoods. That night she was happier than I'd ever seen her. She was wildly, ecstatically happy. It made me feel good to just sit and listen to her.

"Just before she left for the station the next morning, she said 'Eleanor, it's going to be so grand. Everybody is going to know about me, and you'll hear the most glamorous, startling tales about Zelda Sayre Fitzgerald'."

I didn't see Zelda and Scott Fitzgerald again for a number of years. In 1928, my late husband Sam Margrove and I were living in Paris. Sam was an engineering student then, and he was taking graduate courses at the University of Paris. I'd heard the Fitzgeralds were in town, but I didn't feel I could just telephone to say hello. Zelda and I had never known each other that well, and I didn't want them to think that Sam and I were celebrity hunters.

When Sam would finish his work at the university, I'd sometimes meet him in a little cafe not far from the center of the Champs Elysees. The cafe had the uninspiring name of "The Cafe of the Three Maggots" -- but the wine and food were cheap, and the fare was usually good. Most of the people who frequented the cafe were students or artists. Not many people of the Fitzgeralds' stature ever stopped there. So I was surprised one afternoon when I looked up and saw Scott and Zelda being shown to a table. They were with Sara and Gerald Murphy, two well-known friends of theirs.

I'm not sure why I did it, but I got up and went over to their table and introduced myself to Zelda. She was still beautiful and very charming. She invited Sam and me to join them for a drink. We sat at their table for a while, drinking wine and talking about nothing in particular. Both Sam and I liked the Murphys, who seemed to know almost everyone in Paris. Scott didn't say much. He kept refilling his wine glass, and I noticed that he was pale and drawn, as if he were recovering from an illness. The Murphys carried the conversation. Zelda occasionally interjected something, then she'd fall silent for long intervals.

Finally Scott said he didn't like the cafe's wine, and ordered gin.

"Don't you think you ought to ease off, Scott?" Gerald Murphy asked. Scott said he could handle any alcoholic beverage -- he had a great capacity, and he stuck by his gin order.

I noticed that Zelda didn't say anything, but a few minutes later she asked Scott to order her some gin, too. He did and the two of them proceeded to drink an entire bottle. Zelda became more talkative then. She told me she was studying dancing and was going to be a great ballerina. Sara Murphy kept trying to change the subject, but Zelda wouldn't let her. She insisted on talking about her dancing.

About this point, Scott suddenly went deathly pale, and we all thought he was going to collapse. Gerald Murphy and Sam helped him outside, while Sara and I helped Zelda, who was now quite drunk. We got the Fitzgeralds into a cab, and the Murphys said they'd be all right once they got home.

Scott still looked awful, and Zelda didn't look much better. Before the cab left, Zelda made me promise to come see her dance. "Since you're a friend from Montgomery, I'll give you a private performance," she said. "Please say you'll come."

I told Zelda I'd telephone her in a few days, but I never did. Sam and I walked home in silence. Later Sam said, "I never thought Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald would be like that. They're one of the saddest couples I've ever met." Then he asked if I was going to accept Zelda's invitation to watch her dance. "I don't think so," I said. "Zelda makes me feel uncomfortable."

But it was more than that. There was now something about Zelda's character that made me afraid of her.

I never saw Zelda again. In 1948, Sam and I were living in Pomona. We'd just moved to California from New York and were impressed with the orange groves, the sunshine and the mountains.

In late February, I got an urgent telephone call from my family back in Montgomery. My mother was dying and wanted to see me. Sam had to stay in Pomona because of business reasons. So I made the train trip back East alone.

I arrived in Montgomery on March 3. On March 5, my mother died. One of the women who came to pay her respects was Ms. Sayre, Zelda's mother. She mentioned her daughter briefly. Zelda was at Highland Hospital in Asheville, North Carolina. "And she's doing much better," Ms. Sayre said. "Of course, you know Scott's dead. He died almost 10 years ago in California."

I told her I'd read about his death in the papers.

"This deeply affected Zelda," Ms. Sayre went on. "I don't think she thought Scott could ever die. I think the two of them once thought they were invincible."

Zelda's insanity was common knowledge in Montgomery. I remembered my mother writing me a letter some years before -- just after Zelda suffered her first severe breakdown. "Keep in mind her 'bad blood'," Mother insisted. "I think she was always mad. Now it's becoming obvious."

On March 10, a fire swept Highland Hospital in Asheville. Zelda and some other women patients were trapped on the top floor. They couldn't escape because of the bars on the windows and faulty fire doors.

I paid my respects to the Sayre family -- then a few days later, started the long trip back to California.

I had time to do nothing but think on the train. Surprisingly, I didn't think about my mother that much. I had known and understood her very well. She was dead and I could accept that. But I thought a great deal about Zelda Fitzgerald.

I remembered Zelda Sayre, the most popular girl in Montgomery, and how my brother doted on her that summer in 1917. I recalled Eleanor Browder's description of her -- that night before she left for New York to marry Scott. "She was wildly, ecstatically happy. It made me feel good to just sit and listen to her."

Then I remembered the chance meeting with Scott and Zelda in Paris. Zelda's desperation at wanting to be a prima ballerina; Scott's heavy drinking -- to shut out, what?

I wondered what Zelda would have been like if she'd never met Scott Fitzgerald. Would she have married somebody in Montgomery and led an ordinary, though always slightly unconventional life -- or would she have found another Scott -- someone else to make her a central figure on a slippery glass surface, for however long she could keep her balance.

The Fitzgeralds' friends, and later their biographers would try to answer these questions.

In the spring of 1948, I sat looking out a train window -- savoring the view as we crossed the South. The spring flowers were all in bloom, the Spanish moss was heavy with dew and mists rose up from the marsh lands.

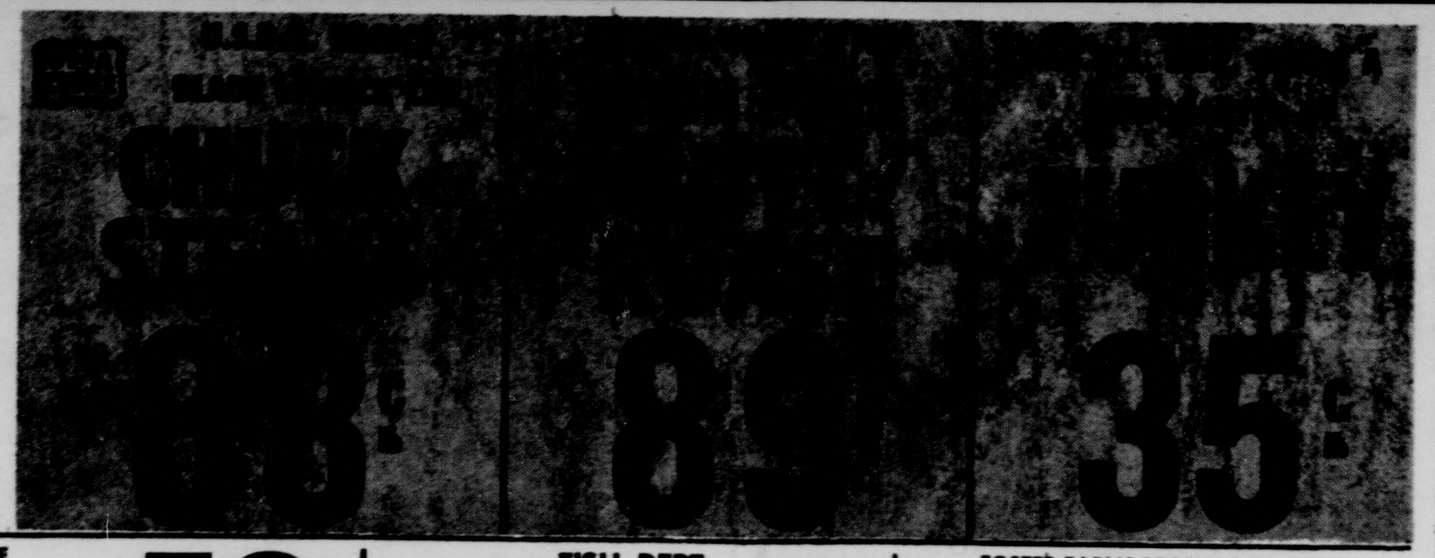

"She moved from this to the world," I thought. "And now she's dead. Poor Zelda. Poor, poor Zelda."

Avocado Cranberry Parfaits -- Loving Cups To Win Many Hearts

UNUSUAL VALENTINE TREAT

Avocado Cranberry Parfaits

There is an ancient belief that birds chose their mates on Feb. 14. And in Victorian times when Feb. 14 had officially been proclaimed St. Valentine's Day, white roses sent by a beau meant "I Love You."

Today Valentine's Day is still celebrated as a special time of romance and affection. A more picturesque description of this loving time is mischievous cupid sending chocolates, long stemmed roses and old fashioned cards decorated with red hearts and white lace.

At serving time place your heart (in the form of a cookie) beside each parfait. What nicer way to say I love you?

Avocado Cranberry Parfaits

1 quart light cream
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla
2 cups Ocean Spray fresh or frozen fresh cranberries
1/2 cup water
2 large California avocados, halved and peeled
1/3 cup lime juice

Stir cream and 1 cup of the sugar in a saucepan over low heat until sugar is dossolved. Remove from heat, cool and then stir in vanilla. Pour mixture into refrigerator trays and freeze until almost firm. While ice cream is freezing, combine cranberries, remaining 1 cup sugar and water in a saucepan and boil for 5 minutes. Press mixture through a sieve; chill this cranberry puree. Mash avocados and mix with lime juice. When ice cream is almost frozen, scrape into a bowl and beat with an electric mixer until soft and fluffy. Fold in mashed avocado mixture. Spoon back into freezer trays and freeze until hard. In a one quart container, layer ice cream and chilled cranberry puree. Press mixture flat to exclude all air spaces. Cover and freeze until hard.

Or, if desired layer ice cream and cranberry puree into 8 parfait glasses. Cover tops with plastic wrap and freeze. Remove parfaits from freezer to soften 10 to 15 minutes before serving.

NOTE: This ice cream can be made with jellied cranberry sauce. Omit cranberries, sugar and water and substitute 1 can (1 pound) Ocean Spray jellied cranberry sauce, mashed until smooth. Makes about 2 quarts, or 8 ice cream parfaits.

Annette And Her Fruit Salad

Like many a Hollywood celebrity, Annette Funicello is extremely health conscious and is a devotee of natural foods. She is particularly fond of salads and one of her favorites, a meal in itself, features California dried figs and other fruits.

She calls this salad "Golden State Fruit Salad" after California, her adopted state, where she moved with her parents from Utica, New York, at the age of four.

The base of the salad is cottage cheese in a hollowed out pineapple shell, covered with cling peach halves, canned cherries surrounded by Calimyrna dried figs. This salad, when served with rolls or other breadstuff provides a balanced meal with its dairy food and variety of fruits.

The Calimyrna fig not only has a sweet, nut-like flavor, it is also an extremely economical source of energy and nutrition. Dried figs offer a high content of valuable minerals -- calcium, phosphorus and iron. They also have an abundance of vitamin A. Annette Funicello has accumulated a hugh fan following in all age groups ever since she began her career as a child actress. At the age of five she was studying dancing; at nine she had already won a beauty contest as "Miss Willow Lake".

In 1955, when Walt Disney was looking for a girl to round out the cast of his "Mickey Mouse Club" television show, he happened to attend an amateur review in Burbank and saw Annette perform in a "Ballet versus Jive" number. She was quickly signed as a dancer-singer.

Even before her name appeared in the credits for the television show, Annette was receiving fan mail with such greetings as "Dear little girl, second from the left, back row, I love you." By popular demand, Annette moved up to the front row. Her fan mail grew to thousands of letters each week. The fan mail landslide has continued through the years and today the volume of mail is one of the greatest of any star.

After starring in scores of "Mickey Mouse Club" shows, the shapely brunette made a graceful transition from Mouseketeer to motion picture star without the usual intervening awkward stage either professionally or personally.

Among her American International motion pictures are "Thunder Alley", "Beach Party", "Pajama Party" "How to Stuff a Wild Bikini" and "Fireball 500." For Walt Disney she has starred in such films as "The Monkey's Uncle," "The Shaggy Dog," "Babes in Toyland" and "The Misadventures of Merlin Jones."

In addition to her films, she has hosted her own television series, "Annette," has guest starred in such series as "The Danny Thomas Show," "Bonanza" Wagon Train" and "Burkes Law," as well as "All Star Bingo," Dream Girl," a "Hondo" segment, "Woody Woodbury," "Hollywood Palace," Malibu U," with Rick Nelson, "Hollywood Squares," "Personality," "Everybody's Talking," and the "Tonight Show."

Teenage Food Likes, Dislikes

Soda pop, milk and steak topped the list of popular foods most liked by 118 teenagers, according to a recent report in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association.

The Cornell University study by Bernice Schorr, Dr. Diva Sanjur and Dr. Eugene Erickson also listed hamburgers, pizza, chicken, french fries, ice cream, spaghetti and orange juice in the upper 10 of the most liked foods listed.

Only eight foods were most disliked by 10 percent or more of the students. Liver was overwhelmingly regarded as the most unpopular item. Also, fish, squash, clams, coffee, spinach, cabbage and beets were named as foods most disliked.

"Ascorbic acid, calcium, vitamin A and iron often are the missing nutrients in teenage diets," said University of California Home Advisor Sharon Higgins.

Selecting a nutritionally adequate diet from only "popular" foods is possible but would require a lot of planning, adds Ms. Higgins. Vitamin A-rich foods like deep yellow vegetables are lacking in the list of "popular" foods.

Ms. Higgins stresses the need to drink more milk for calcium; to eat more fruits and vegetables to keep good sources of vitamin A and vitamin C in the diet.

Keep the refrigerator and table well-stocked with milk, cheese, cold cuts, fresh fruit and raw vegetables. Teenagers will readily down a fresh orange or apple from a convenient fruit bowl.

Liver is by far the best source of iron. Ms. Higgins recommends the following recipe that she often serves to convert liver haters into liver lovers.

Sheriff Bland was also recently elected Chairman of the Tri-County Council on Criminal Justice, a regional organization with representation from San Bernardino, Riverside and Imperial Counties. The Council has a total of 39 members from the three counties.

The Tri-County Council on Criminal Justice acts as a comprehensive regional screening and advisory agency for proposals and requests being submitted to the California Council on Criminal Justice as established by the Federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

The San Bernardino County Criminal Justice Planning Committee acts in a similar capacity on matters of concern within the counties' boundaries and works closely with the Tri-County Council. All 15 members of the Planning Committee are also members of the Tri-County Council.

Sheriff Bland was born in Needles and attended Riverside Junior College before beginning the extensive law enforcement career that has led to his present capacity.

In 1935, he was employed by the Needles Police Department and in 1938 became the fifth man in the state of California to be selected by the FBI to attend its National Academy in Washington, D.C. After graduation, Bland returned to Needles, but in 1941 accepted a request to join the FBI as an agent.

In 1943, he enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps and became a gunnery sergeant in the infantry. While serving overseas during World War II, he was appointed Chief of Police by the City of Needles

Noted Educator Named To Board

Dr. Thompson Webb, Southern California pioneer educator and founder of the Webb School for Boys near Pomona, has been named honorary chairman of the board of trustees of Boys Republic, it was announced by Baird Marble, president of Republic's executive committee.

According to Marble, Dr. Webb is the first to be appointed to this position since a similar honor was conferred upon Dr. Robert Millikan, president of Caltec, in 1942.

A long-time member of the board of trustees of Boys Republic, Dr. Webb was born in Bell Buckle, Tennessee. His father, William Robert Webb, known as "Old Swaney," founded the Webb School for Boys in that state. The school was an important factor in the development of education in the south at the close of the Civil War.

Dr. Webb graduated from his father's school and then from the University of North Carolina. He came to Southern California during the first World War and began farming operations in Coachella Valley. In 1921 he moved to Pomona and took over a run-down piece of property on Baseline Road where he started the Webb School. He built the school's museum-like chapel himself, shpaing the adobe bricks by hand.

The school was operated on Dr. Webb's conviction that teenage boys develop best in an atmosphere of "plain living and high thinking." It has achieved national recognition for the large number of science scholarships and awards won by its graduates and is regarded as one of the leading college preparatory schools in California.

Dr. Webb remained head master and director of the school for 40 years, retiring in 1962. He presently resides in Claremont.

He is the recipient of honorary doctorates from Pomona College, Occidental College and from College of Pacific. He also served on the board of director of Scripps College and was one of the organizers of the California Association of Independent Schools.

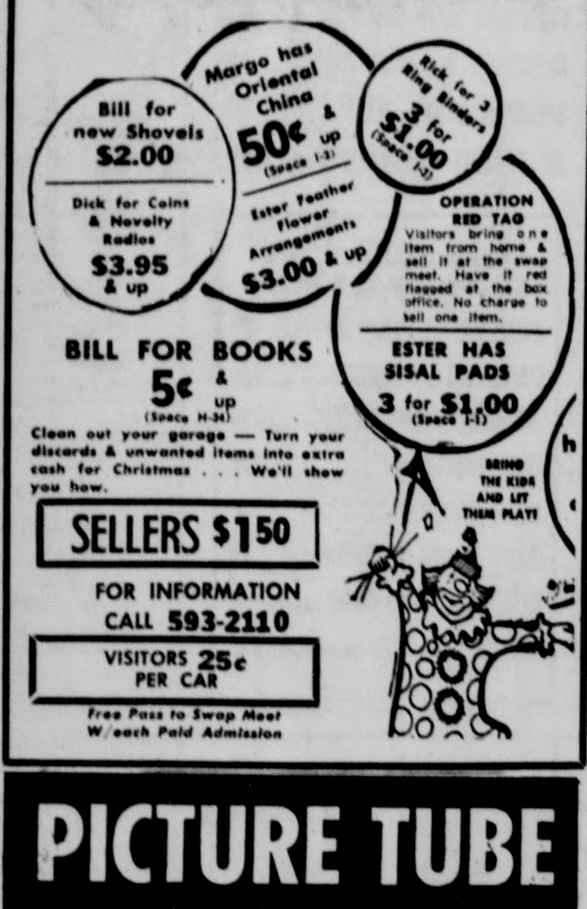

Boys Republic is a non-profit, non-sectarian school for boys located near Chino. Started in 1907, it is the oldest school of its kind in the West.

SUMMIT TRAILS
Only two executive homes in seclusion overlooking the valley. Designed expressly for the family that has arrived, they preserve the graciousness of a rapidly vanishing way of life.
Drive north on Garey Avenue to the end, turn right on College to the fork (Live Oak Canyon) to the top, and suddenly you're above it all on streets that are quiet cul-de-sacs, with elegant rambling homes. Look in vain for any telltale telephone or electric wires—nothing is visible.
The homes themselves? Once inside the imposing entryways, you enter a gracious world unto itself, with every appurtenance the good life demands. And some little features like full sheet vinyl flooring in kitchens, family rooms and baths—that tell more about our attention to detail than the big obvious ones.
Truly, these are gems of homes. And we are proud to have cultured them for families of uncompromising taste.

How to dream with your eyes wide open.

Everybody likes to dream. But the chances of seeing a dream become reality are pretty slim. Unless you're crafty enough to figure out a smart way to save. One that's practical and painless. One that won't eat up your paycheck but will still give you a chance to salt something away.

If you're smart, you'll decide on U.S. Savings Bonds. They're one of the easiest ways to save. Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Then an amount you specify will be automatically set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

So, if you're not satisfied with just dreaming, buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Then you'll find out there's no such thing as an impossible dream.

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

UNITED STATES SAVINGS BONDS

Now Bonds mature in less than six years.

Go country in style

Park East revives the time-honored tradition of the town square and village green. The community focus is the magnificant recreation center with swimming pool and complete leisure facilities.

With a Park East home comes a village feeling of an earlier time One that combines the pride and privacy of individual home ownership with that traditional sense of community.

Acres of parkland carry the tranquil rural environment right up to your back fence.

And outside are those lingering sunsets over golden rolling hills. Get back to Park East. It's about time.

GOING FAST

What's the use of holding a gala Grand Opening when there may be no more homes available by the time they're finished? Good question! But we think we have the answer. We think it's only fair play to offer you an opportunity to be part of the game.

We knew we had a good thing when we broke ground at Forecast 70's in the very shadow of the foothills of northern Upland. But we didn't know the world would discover us so soon. Crowell/Leventhal presents quality one- and 2-story homes on spacious lots overlooking the Pomona/Ontario valley. Full price of $35,450 to $39,750 includes many luxurious standard features. Let us introduce ourselves lest we, like the Cheshire cat, should say Hello and Goodbye in the same breath. And before this opportunity fades away, let us hope that the smile which remains behind may belong to you.
